

Investment Event

UK and EU strike Brexit deal

The deal preserves tariff-free EU-UK trade for goods, and also covers issues such as security co-operation

The deal should limit the scope for further major disruption at the UK/EU border in the new year period

For now, the challenges posed by the pandemic remain substantial and overwhelm other economic and geopolitical considerations

Our views

We remain constructive on UK equities, which are relatively exposed to cyclical sectors and have lagged wider market performance this year. This implies scope for “catch-up” in 2021 as the global economy recovers

Furthermore, reduced Brexit uncertainty may boost investor appetite for UK assets

UK and EU agree terms of their future trading relationship

After months of difficult negotiations, the UK and European Union (EU) have agreed on the terms of a post-Brexit trade deal just days ahead of the end of the UK’s transition period with the EU on 31 December.

Importantly, the deal preserves tariff-free EU-UK trade for most goods, and also covers issues such as security co-operation. However, there is little on trade of services. A “level playing field” for competition between the two sides would be guaranteed by a new arbitration mechanism, which would impose sanctions via tariffs if either side significantly undercut the other’s regulations.

With time running out before the transition period ends, the deal will be adopted using an accelerated “provisional application” procedure. This only requires the consent of the UK and EU national governments with the European Parliament signing it off retrospectively in January.

Deal removes some downside risks to growth in 2021

The deal should limit the scope for further major disruption at the UK/EU border in the new year period, which would have hit trade and economic activity. Nevertheless, this week’s events have shown how quickly a short border interruption can cause long delays, so some further disruption is possible.

It is important to remember that even with a deal, the trading relationship between the UK and EU will change materially; the deal is far less comprehensive than imagined earlier in the Brexit negotiation process. There will likely be greater friction at the border (including customs checks and declarations) and, therefore, some economic costs such as upward pressure on prices. However, the starting point is that inflation in both the UK and eurozone is well below their respective targets.

For now, the challenges posed by the pandemic remain substantial and overwhelm other economic and geopolitical considerations. Both economies are facing major short-term headwinds amid a resurgence in virus cases and fresh restrictions, but the outlook for later in 2021 remains positive as the pandemic is likely to subside.

Market considerations

The immediate market reaction to news that a deal was imminent saw a rally in sterling (Figure 1) and selloff in UK gilts, although both remained within their recent trading ranges. Moves in other markets were relatively muted, with a broad risk-on tilt.

We remain constructive on UK equities. UK indices have lagged wider market performance in 2020, and are relatively exposed to cyclical sectors (financials, materials, industrials) and the health of the global economy (via multinationals). We think this implies significant scope for catch-up in 2021

Figure 1: Pound sterling (GBP) versus euro (EUR)

Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future returns. Source: Bloomberg, as of 24 December 2020.

Investments, annuity and insurance products

ARE NOT A BANK DEPOSIT OR OBLIGATION OF THE BANK OR ANY OF ITS AFFILIATES	ARE NOT FDIC INSURED	ARE NOT INSURED BY ANY FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AGENCY	ARE NOT GUARANTEED BY THE BANK OR ANY OF ITS AFFILIATES	MAY LOSE VALUE
--	-------------------------------	--	--	----------------------

with the global economy recovering from the pandemic as vaccines are rolled out (with the UK well positioned in this respect).

Meanwhile, reduced Brexit uncertainty may boost investor appetite for UK assets. As we argued in our Outlook for 2021 – The Restoration Economy, policy uncertainty is ebbing away, and further Brexit clarity can contribute to this trend continuing next year.

Nevertheless, we acknowledge significant near-term challenges to the global economy amid a surge in virus cases in many countries. There are downside risks to the current pricing of some risk assets, which have incorporated a lot of good news on vaccine developments in recent weeks.

Important information:

The contents of this document may not be reproduced or further distributed to any person or entity, whether in whole or in part, for any purpose. All non-authorized reproduction or use of this document will be the responsibility of the user and may lead to legal proceedings. The material contained in this document is for general education information purposes only and is neither intended as, nor does it constitute, advice or a recommendation to buy or sell investments, as defined by the US Securities and Exchange Commission. For individualized tailored recommendations based on your needs or objectives, please contact your financial professional directly for more information.

Some of the statements contained in this document may be considered forward looking statements which provide current expectations or forecasts of future events. Such forward looking statements are not guarantees of future performance or events and involve risks and uncertainties. Actual results may differ materially from those described in such forward-looking statements as a result of various factors. We do not undertake any obligation to update the forward-looking statements contained herein, or to update the reasons why actual results could differ from those projected in the forward-looking statements. This document has no contractual value and is not by any means intended as a solicitation, nor a recommendation for the purchase or sale of any financial instrument in any jurisdiction in which such an offer is not lawful. The views and opinions expressed herein are those of HSBC Global Asset Management Global Investment Strategy Unit and HSBC Securities (USA) Inc. at the time of preparation, and are subject to change at any time. These views may not necessarily indicate current portfolios' composition. Individual portfolios managed by HSBC Global Asset Management primarily reflect individual clients' objectives, risk preferences, time horizon, and market liquidity.

The value of investments and the income from them can go down as well as up and investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance contained in this document is not a reliable indicator of future performance while any forecasts, projections and simulations contained herein should not be relied upon as an indication of future results. Where overseas investments are held the rate of currency exchange may cause the value of such investments to go down as well as up. Investments in emerging markets are by their nature higher risk and potentially more volatile than those inherent in some established markets. Economies in Emerging Markets generally are heavily dependent upon international trade and, accordingly, have been and may continue to be affected adversely by trade barriers, exchange controls, managed adjustments in relative currency values and other protectionist measures imposed or negotiated by the countries with which they trade. These economies also have been and may continue to be affected adversely by economic conditions in the countries in which they trade. Mutual fund investments are subject to market risks, read all related documents carefully. Please consider the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses carefully before investing. The prospectus, which contains this and other information, can be obtained by calling an HSBC Securities (USA) Inc. Financial Consultant or call 888-525-5757. Read it carefully before you invest.

Investment and certain insurance products, including annuities, are offered by HSBC Securities (USA) Inc. (HSI), member NYSE/FINRA/SIPC. In California, HSI conducts insurance business as HSBC Securities Insurance Services. License #: OE67746. HSI is an affiliate of HSBC Bank USA, N.A. Whole life, universal life, term life, and other types of insurance are provided by unaffiliated third parties and offered through HSBC Insurance Agency (USA) Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of HSBC Bank USA, N.A. Products and services may vary by state and are not available in all states. California license #: OD36843. Bonds are subject generally to interest rate, credit, liquidity and market risks. Investors should consider the investment objectives, risks and charges and expenses associated with bonds before investing. Further information about a bond is available in the issuer's official statement. The official statement should be read carefully before investing. Investments, Annuity and Insurance Products: Are not a deposit or other obligation of the bank or any of its affiliates; Not FDIC insured or insured by any federal government agency of the United States; Not guaranteed by the bank or any of its affiliates; and subject to investment risk, including possible loss of principal invested.

All decisions regarding the tax implications of your investment(s) should be made in consultation with your independent tax advisor.

ED 2442. Exp. 24.06.2021